

In groups of three, draw a merperson! Fold a sheet of paper horizontally into three sections. First, one of you will draw the head and shoulders of your merperson. Folding to the middle section so that you can't see the first section, the next person will draw the torso and arms. What is the merperson doing? Finally, folding to the bottom section so you can't see the middle section, the last of you will draw the tail. Be sure to include details! Then unfold your piece of paper and see what your merperson looks like. When drawing, be sure to have your lines go slightly into the section below so that they will line up with the next person's drawing.
