

Because Fergus and Zeke are so small, they have a much different view of the museum than the students do.

As a group, imagine what the exhibits must look like to two tiny mice. Have each person draw a different exhibit from the perspective of Fergus and Zeke. Then put them all together and discuss how the trip to the museum was different for the mice and the students.

